Houston, TX – June 1, 2009: cordin8 technologies, a leading provider of collaborative software targeted at portfolio/program management office operations, today proudly announces their sponsorship of the Project Management Institute's (PMI) Program Management Office Specific Interest Group (PMOSIG).

"The PMOSIG is an ideal sponsor partner for cordin8's collaborative platform supporting Program Management Office operations. Their membership is directly involved in the daily operation of PMO functions and cordin8 can provide these thought leaders with the kind of tools required for today's challenging business environment." says Brad Jackson, CEO, cordin8 technologies, llc.

By utilizing cordin8's software, Portfolio & Program Management offices and project teams are able to maintain and manage information in a centralized environment. In doing so, the organization creates, within cordin8, their "Mission Control" that links strategic objectives defined by their executive teams to the initiatives, programs and projects which deliver on that strategy. The linkage between program and project performance data and the executive dashboards enables real-time status reporting and continuous collaborative discussion, both of which are competitive necessities for the twenty-first-century organization.

"We are very pleased and excited to have cordin8 as one of our PMOSIG sponsors and as a sponsor for the 2009 PMO Symposium. Acquiring sponsorship is a critical part of any volunteer activity or organization and we are very proud to be able to herald cordin8, a company focused on creating custom solutions within the Project/Portfolio Management, Strategic Office Management, and Balanced Scorecard Reporting space, as one that is affiliated to our organization and our premiere event", says Rommy Musch, PMOSIG Executive Chair. "The range of products and services cordin8 offers fully supports the theme for our Symposium this year: "Building the Framework for Success"."
